

Tom Bullen – Air-Edel Recording Studios Manager

Tom began working at Air-Edel as an assistant engineer in 2007 after graduating from Staffordshire University with a BSc in Music Technology. He worked for a number of years on countless record and mix sessions for film and television scores, bands and radio plays. Since 2010 he has been running the studio in the role of Studio Manager.

Tom's intricate knowledge of the studios helps him to ensure that each client can make the best use of their time and budget. He is also always available to offer technical assistance in the studios and enjoys getting involved when a busy session needs an extra pair of hands. He also regularly assists and engineers in the studio.
